

BROWN

The Modern Greek Studies Program

Presents
An Evening With Poet

Elsa Korneti

What the critics say:

"Her voice may be new, but its maturity testifies years of silent craft and an impressive familiarity with modern world poetry. Hers is a personal poetry, yet it deals with themes universally relevant and does so in a disarmingly sincere and unpretentious way. The dialog between a critical alter ego and the self reveals whatever false, deceptive, concealed, but also whatever true and valuable there may be in the narrator's experiences. Elsa Korneti is an exciting new voice in Contemporary Greek Poetry".

Wednesday, April 15 at 6 pm

Brian Room, Maddock Alumni Center
Corner of Brown and George Streets

Elsa Korneti was born in Munich, Germany, and raised in Greece. She studied Economics at the University of Macedonia-Thessaloniki, and Industrial and Organizational Psychology at the University Trier in Germany. For over ten years she worked as a journalist for various newspapers and magazines. She has been awarded first prize in a national short story competition and has published 3 collections of poetry, "In the Shell's Spiral" (2007), "Eternal Bird Droppings" (2007), "A Bouquet of Fish Bones" (2009).

Reception to follow