

ATLANTIC HISTORY

A CRITICAL APPRAISAL

Please join us

Atlantic history, with its emphasis on interregional developments that transcend national borders, has risen to prominence as a fruitful perspective through which to study the interconnections among European, North American, Latin America, and Africa.

These original essays present a comprehensive and incisive look at how Atlantic history has been interpreted across time and through a variety of lenses from the fifteenth through the early nineteenth century.

From the back cover of Atlantic History

A Colloquium

Jack P. Greene and Philip D. Morgan, editors of Atlantic History, will discuss the book.

Discussion will be initiated by

Professors Doug Cope, History Department, and Phil Gould, English Department, Brown University

MacMillan Reading Room
John Carter Brown Library

Thursday, March 26, 2009, 4:00 p.m.

Reception to follow.

Corner of George and Brown streets, Providence, Rhode Island, 02912.
For handicapped access, please call 401.863.2725

Jack P. Greene ranks among the foremost historians of early America. He joined the Department of History at Johns Hopkins University in 1966. In 2008 Professor Greene received the Award for Scholarly Distinction presented by the American Historical Association. He is an Invited Research Scholar of the John Carter Brown Library.

Philip D. Morgan is the Harry C. Black Professor of History at the Johns Hopkins University and author of the award-winning book, Slave Counterpoint: Black Culture in the Eighteenth-Century Chesapeake and Lowcountry. He has been the editor of publications at the Omohundro Institute of Early American History and Culture and a Fellow of the John Carter Brown Library.

