Welcome to Brown’s 250th Anniversary Celebration!

I am delighted to welcome all to Brown College for what will be an unforgettable weekend in the tumultuous swirl of history, culture, and activity that is the university’s Fall celebration. The weekend offers a delightful whirl of special events for those who have heard about our 250th but have yet to visit, or who are returning to Brown for the first time.

Among the many highlights of the weekend are the Alumni Reunion, Convocation and Luncheon. I will incorporate the 250th into a speech and talk on the topic of my choice. A number of events have been scheduled to feature alumni and faculty in the Fall Colonnade; these events are described in more detail elsewhere in this brochure. Our University’s strategic plan, building on our vision, is a New View of Brown.

On Saturday afternoon, we will dedicate the Stayer Memorial, a project that emerged as part of the University’s response to the end of the Brown Corporation on 250 years ago. We are confident that sculptor Martin Puryear will participate in this weekend’s events.

The Open House will feature faculty, students, staff, and alumni engaged in the work of the University, from faculty in their offices to students in their rooms. This year we have added special programs, such as the open house tours, and activities, such as the open houses.

We are honored that sculptor Martin Puryear will participate in this weekend’s events.

Fall Celebration 2014
Welcome to Brown’s 250th Anniversary Celebration!

I am delighted to welcome alumni back to College Hill for the weekend of our 250th Anniversary–the 250th Anniversary of Brown University’s Founding. The weekend offers an opportunity to open Brown’s past, here and now, to our campus community and to the Brown in the future.

Among the many highlights of the weekend is the Alumni Reunion (Covington and Lamband). I trust you will complete the alumni honorary chart–check out all that you can do to support the university. There are many opportunities to hear about Brown's tradition and faculty in the Fall Colloquia Series, the program on Brown and the learning and teaching climate, the University’s strategic plan, building on distinction; A New Era of Discovery.

On Saturday afternoon, we will dedicate the Storytellers, a project that emerged as part of the University’s response to the work of the Brown Commission on Student Life. We are known that this initiative will help our Brown and for your contributions to society as a whole. We will celebrate the alumni being honored–thank you for all that you do for Brown.

I extend special appreciation to the 250th Anniversary Steering Committee, chaired by Wendy J. Strothman ’72, for giving so much of their time and energy to planning and shaping our 250th anniversary.

As we continue the 250th celebration on campus and for the weekend, we will celebrate the vision of our founders and the women and men who shaped Brown and Brown into the Brown University of today.

Enjoy your weekend!

The Brown University Vision of Excellence

The themes of which align with the integrative themes of the University’s strategic plan, building on distinction: A New Era of Discovery.

The timeline of the weekend offers an opportunity to open Brown’s past, here and now, to our campus community and to the Brown in the future.

I extend special appreciation to the 250th Anniversary Steering Committee, chaired by Wendy J. Strothman ’72, for giving so much of their time and energy to planning and shaping our 250th anniversary.

As we continue the 250th celebration on campus and for the weekend, we will celebrate the vision of our founders and the women and men who shaped Brown and Brown into the Brown University of today.
Welcome to Brown's 250th Anniversary Celebration!

I am delighted to welcome alumni back to College Hill for the weekend and all the ways you can participate in commemorating the 250th. This three-day event will feature faculty, students, staff, and alumni gathered on campus, in Providence, and in communities around the world, to share in the University’s rich history and traditions.

On Saturday afternoon, we will dedicate the Slavery Memorial, a project that emerged as part of the University’s response to the work of the Steering Committee on Slavery and Justice. We encourage all 250th attendees to visit the Slavery Memorial on Saturday and those who could not participate in the dedication ceremony to view it on campus.

At the Saturday evening Slavery and Justice dinner, we will hear from members of the Steering Committee on Slavery and Justice and guests from the United Nations. The dinner will be held at the historic Waterman Club, which has served as a meeting place for many events of historical significance.

On Sunday, we will celebrate with a service of commemoration in the Brown University Chapel, followed by a reception and dinner at the Johnson Publishing Center. The evening will include music and readings, as well as a special announcement of a major gift to the University.

The Open House will feature faculty, students, staff, and alumni gathered on campus to share in the University’s history and traditions. The weekend includes a tour of our campus and a chance to visit classrooms, laboratories, and other spaces where the University’s academic and research programs take place.

On Sunday afternoon, we will dedicate the Pembroke Dorms, a new facility that will provide increased housing for undergraduate students. The ceremony will be held in the Pembroke Dorrance Jill F. Zarin Plaza and will include remarks from University leaders and student representatives.

On Monday, we will celebrate the 250th Anniversary Fall Celebration Forums, which will feature faculty, students, staff, and alumni gathered on campus and in communities around the world to discuss the University’s past, present, and future.

The 250th Anniversary continues through May 2015, and we encourage you to plan your visit to campus and participate in the many events that will take place throughout the year.

Enjoy your weekend.

Brown was founded in 1764 – the third college in New England and the seventh in Colonial America. Brown was the first Ivy League school to accept students from all religious affiliations, a testament to the spirit of openness that still typifies Brown today.

Originally located in Warren, Rhode Island, and called the College of Rhode Island, Brown moved to its current spot on College Hill in 1770 and was renamed in 1804 in recognition of a $5,000 gift from Nicholas Brown, a prominent Providence businessman and alumnus, Class of 1786.

Women were first admitted to Brown in 1891. The Women’s College was later renamed Pembroke College in Brown University before merging with Brown College, the men’s undergraduate school, in 1971. The northern section of campus where the women’s school was situated is known today as the Pembroke Campus.

The first master’s degrees were granted in 1888 and the first doctorates in 1889. The first medical degrees of the modern era were presented in 1975 to a graduating class of 58 students. Today, Brown awards approximately 100 MD degrees annually from the Warren Alpert Medical School.

Undergraduate education changed dramatically in 1970 with the introduction of what has become known as the Brown Curriculum. The idea for this change came from a report written by undergraduates Ira Magaziner ’69, LHD’94 hon., P’06, P’07, P’10 and Elliot E. Maxwell ’68, LHD’94 hon., P’06, as part of a Group Independent Study Project (GISP) that examined education at Brown.

The “new curriculum” eliminated core requirements shared by all Brown undergraduates and created specific departmental concentration requirements. This approach has defined the undergraduate academic experience at Brown ever since, demanding that students serve as the architects of their courses of study.

Constant change defines Brown’s past and future, though the University’s culture is rich in tradition. Brown’s first building, for example, the red-bricked University Hall, was built in 1770 and still stands on the College Green. Today, the University consists of nearly 230 buildings on approximately 150 acres, and includes undergraduate and graduate programs, plus the Warren Alpert Medical School, School of Public Health, School of Engineering, and the School of Professional Studies.

In 2002, The Plan for Academic Enrichment built on Brown’s strengths and set new benchmarks of excellence in research, education and service. Brown’s 19th president, Christina H. Paxson, has charted the course for the University’s future with the recently approved strategic plan, Building on Distinction: A New Plan for Brown. The plan provides a vision and set of broad goals to achieve higher levels of distinction as a university that unites innovative education and outstanding research to benefit the community, the nation and the world. It calls for targeted investments to attract and support the most talented and diverse faculty, students, and staff; capitalize on existing strengths; and provide the environment to foster rigorous inquiry and discovery across the disciplines. The plan highlights the need to keep a Brown education affordable for talented students from all economic backgrounds and to sustain a community with the diversity of thought and experience required for excellence.

Lost Museum Exhibit and Guided Tours
The Jenks Museum of Natural History and Anthropology, one of Brown University’s vanished museums, has been given a second life. A group of students, professors, and artists calling themselves “The Jenks Society for Lost Museums” has spent the past year researching the Jenks Museum, re-collecting scattered relics and remnants, and transforming words into rooms and fragments of curatorial description into spectral art. Guided tours of the exhibit will begin on the hour and half hour between 10:00 am and 11:30 am.
Rhode Island Hall, Joukowsky Institute for Archaeology and the Ancient World, 60 George Street

10:00 AM – 12:00 PM
Tour of the New Greenhouse Facilities
This tour will show the modern research modules and conservatory area of the 4th floor of the newly renovated Hunter Lab, now called the Building for Environmental Research and Teaching (BERT). The tour will also cover the basement areas related to the facility, such as the head house, greenhouse classrooms, and growth chamber rooms. Patrons may enter through the main door at 89 Waterman Street, walk down the right corridor, and take the elevator to the 4th floor. Tours will begin on the hour and half hour, and the last tour will begin at 11:30 am.
Building for Environmental Research and Teaching (BERT), 4th Floor, 89 Waterman Street

10:00 AM – 1:00 PM
Making Stuff, Exploring Stuff
Creativity – not something we normally teach, measure, or understand. Yet it is a major part of what makes the Brown student special. In this hands on demonstration, groups of students and their advisors will share their creativity in exploring space (Northeast Planetary Data Center), and in creating new biological designs and functions (iGEM team of synthetic biologists). Come join this group of students create the future!

25 Objects: The Stories of Our Past, Present, and Future

Brown’s stories are embodied in its people, but those stories also live in its documents, objects, and monuments. This anniversary exhibit features the stories of twenty-five objects selected to reveal what makes Brown unique, with resonating themes of education, discovery, innovation, determination, and tradition. Valerie Taylor, the exhibit curator, will be on hand to answer questions between 10:30 am – 11:30 am.

Off to College: Higher Education in the Americas, 1551-1825

In celebration of Brown’s 250th Anniversary, the John Carter Brown Library is exhibiting books, maps, and manuscripts from the collection related to higher education in the early Americas: from the founding of universities in the Spanish American colonies of Mexico and Peru in 1551 through the creation of Harvard, Brown, and beyond.

John Carter Brown Library, 94 George Street

10:00 AM – 4:00 PM
In Deo Speramus: The Symbols and Ceremonies of Brown University

The symbols and ceremonies of Brown University embody its unique history, values, and identity. These symbols and ceremonies establish solidarity within Brown’s community and transcend its campus to make connections to the wider social spheres of which Brown is a part. On the occasion of the University’s 250th Anniversary, this exhibit assembles Brown’s symbols so that we may see and hear what they have to say.

Manning Hall, Haffenreffer Museum of Anthropology, 21 Prospect Street
10:00 AM – 4:00 PM

Audible Spaces

This exhibit presents three sound installations that encourage participants to explore the subtleties of listening. Tristan Perich, Zarouhie Abdalian, and [The User] have each created immersive environments using seemingly uniform sounds that dissolve into tonal, tactile, and temporal variations as participants engage with them. Unified by a shared economy of means, all three projects prompt participants to consider the dynamic relationship between sound, space, and personal subjectivity, while addressing a distinct set of historical, social, and sonic concerns. Presented in two locations: List Art Center, David Winton Bell Gallery, 64 College Street and the Perry and Marty Granoff Center for the Creative Arts, Cohen Gallery, 154 Angell Street

10:00 AM – 4:00 PM

The Way to Strategy

Cuban artists Alexander Beatón and Pedro Gutiérrez present new works for their ongoing multimedia project, The Way to Strategy. The project is a conceptual exploration of the relationship between the Guantanamo Bay Naval Base and the Cuban community of Caimanera, situated at the border of the base but prohibited, by the lack of diplomatic relations between the U.S. and Cuba, from any form of contact with it. This will be the project’s first showing outside Cuba. Perry and Marty Granoff Center for the Creative Arts, Lower Lobby Gallery, 154 Angell Street

10:00 AM – 4:00 PM

Techstyle Haus and the Solar Decathlon: Designing for the Future of Efficient Living

Having just returned from the 2014 Solar Decathlon Europe in Versailles, France, students from team Techstyle Haus will showcase the culmination of a two-year collaboration between Brown, Rhode Island School of Design, and the University of Applied Sciences in Erfurt, Germany. The exhibition will catalogue the process of designing and constructing a radically innovative, net-zero, solar-powered home and the students' journey from the classroom to an international stage. Perry and Marty Granoff Center for the Creative Arts, Studio 1, 154 Angell Street

10:00 AM – 4:00 PM

Nelson Fitness Center Tours

Alumni are welcome to tour the Nelson Fitness Center. Tours will be offered every 30 minutes and will begin in the Fitness Center Lobby. Last tour leaves at 3:30 pm. Nelson Fitness Center, 225 Hope Street
10:00 AM – 4:00 PM

iWriting 3D (Virtual Cave Tours)

Brown has a long and proud tradition of 3D computer graphics research devoted chiefly to scientific visualization, and the University is unique in enabling one of its Literary Arts’ writing workshops to explore what it might mean to write, literally, in space. Over the years, authoring software written by Brown undergraduates has allowed student writers, including non-programmers, to produce a growing body of experimental language-driven work for this exciting medium. For the 250th Fall Celebration, we invite visitors to Brown’s ‘Legacy Cave’ now housed in the Granoff Center. We explain its workings and present a selection of exemplary student works in an immersive 3D-stereo graphics ‘world’ sometimes better known as ‘virtual reality.’ Demonstrations will take place at 10:30 am, 11:15 am, 12:00 pm, 2:00 pm, 2:45 pm and 3:30 pm.

Perry and Marty Granoff Center for the Creative Arts, Studio 4, Room N330, 154 Angell Street

10:00 AM – 4:00 PM

Robotics Lab Tour

Come see our robots and give the PR2 a high-five. Fly the quad-rotor helicopter. Be remotely present through the Beam. Learn something about how robots work and will affect society.

Presented by Chad Jenkins, Associate Professor of Computer Science, and John Raiti, Research Developer.

10:00 AM – 4:00 PM

Cassini and the Exploration of Icy Worlds

The Cassini spacecraft has been exploring Saturn and its icy moons and rings for over 10 years. The Northeast Planetary Data Center, one of a worldwide network of planetary information facilities, presents new and often surprising results of this extended mission, utilizing our newly acquired “Magic Planet,” a digital 3D globe. A one-quarter scale model of the Cassini probe will also be on display and Data Center personnel will be available to answer questions.

Creating Relics for Brown and the Search for a Usable Past

The ancient objects we associate with the history of Brown University are physical manifestations of the veneration we feel about this place. Like sacred religious relics, the time-worn buildings and portraits and ceremonial artifacts we have enshrined are touchstones that enable our sense of connection to Brown. In this talk, University Curator and Senior Lecturer in American Studies Rob Emlen examines the history and meanings of those objects we have chosen to venerate.
List Art Center, Room 120, 64 College Street

12:00 PM – 1:50 PM
Alumni Recognition Ceremony and Luncheon

As the University celebrates 250 years, join fellow alumni to hear President Christina H. Paxson’s plans for Brown’s future and to celebrate outstanding Brown graduates. The ceremony will include awards from the Brown Alumni Association and the Brown Annual Fund recognizing alumni who make a difference for Brown and for the world. Please note, this event is open to alumni and their guests. Pre-registration and tickets are required.

Sermons in Stone – and Brick, Stucco, Glass, Slate, and Wood

This architectural tour, led by Raymond P. Rhinehart ’62, Hon. AIA, will look at the buildings that line the Front Green, buildings that are among Brown’s most historic. Why were they placed where they are? What do they say about the early history of Brown as it relates to the city? This will also be an opportunity to begin a conversation about the University’s architectural heritage, which gives Brown a unique sense of place. Tour participants will move to the south end of the College Green where consideration will be given to what distinguishes it from the Front Green and why it is the heart of the Brown campus. Topics covered will range from historic preservation and adaptive use to geology, the transformation of Brown from a College to a University, and the power of a central heating system.
Manning Hall Steps, Front Green, 21 Prospect Street

2:00 PM – 2:50 PM
The Brown Reader Contributors’ Reading

Join us for a series of readings by contributors to the The Brown Reader: 50 Writers Remember College Hill, an anthology of alumni stories created in celebration of the 250th Anniversary. 250th School of Engineering: Encapsulating Brown – A Design Workshop

Visitors are invited to hear welcoming remarks from Dean Larry Larson followed by guided tours to observe the design workshop. This workshop will focus on design concepts and hands-on design, showcasing team-based, experiential learning. The theme of the design challenge will be Encapsulating Brown – students will be challenged with re-imagining a ‘time capsule.’ What could be created now to capture small representations of Brown culture and society to revisit in the future? Students will develop simple prototypes over the course of the workshop, and two will be chosen for further development and later ‘buried’ to mark Brown’s 250th Anniversary.

Much Ado About Nothing

Cambridge University American Stage Tour (CAST) presents Much Ado About Nothing with the support of Brown’s Shakespeare on the Green. Filled with live music, a line up of vibrant characters and sparkling dialogue, this is Shakespeare’s comedic skill at its absolute best. As devious strategies are prepared, sides drawn and redrawn, and untruth after untruth exposed, the outcome of each romantic match is just too close to call at least until the final hand has been shown.

Welcome to Brown's 250th Anniversary Celebration!

I am delighted to welcome alumni back to College Hill for the weekend and to celebrate our University’s Quincentenary—the 250th anniversary of Brown’s founding. This weekend offers an opportunity to reconnect with friends, enjoy the University’s vibrant campus life, and re-immerse yourself in Brown’s traditions.

Among the many highlights of this weekend are:
- The Alumni Reunion Gala on Saturday in the Alumni tent in College Green; we are honored that sculptor Martin Puryear will participate in this ceremony.
- The Open House will feature faculty, students, staff, and alumni representing each of the University’s schools, colleges, and programs, including religious, arts, research, and service. The weekend also includes free beer and wine tastings, music, and other events.
- The Brown Alumni Association Annual Meeting and Entertainment Night, featuring live music, food, and entertainment.
- The Alumni Banquet, featuring keynote speaker Alain de Botton and entertainment by the Brown Alumni Association.
- The Alumni Reunion Parade, featuring floats and decorations from each school and college.
- The Alumni Reunion Concert, featuring performances by Brown’s alumni bands.
- The Alumni Reunion Dinner, featuring live music and entertainment by the Brown Alumni Association.

We hope you will enjoy this special weekend with your friends and family.

I look forward to seeing you on campus and sharing in the excitement of this historic anniversary.

Enjoy your weekend!

Welcome to Brown’s 250th Anniversary Celebration!

I am delighted to invite you home to College Hill to be part of an exhilarating celebration of the 250th anniversary of Brown’s founding. The weekend offers events that will honor Brown people, past and present, and that will inspire the University’s future. Among the many highlights of the weekend are Alumni Reunion Crimson and Lavender Reunions. It’s a great time to reconnect with classmates, old friends, and family in the Fall Colonnade Forum, through athletic events, and through panels, workshops, exhibitions, and University-wide programming. Brown’s 250th is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to participate in a truly historic celebration.

The Fall Celebration will feature faculty, students, staff, and alumni throughout the weekend, with opportunities to reflect on the history of the University, and to dream about the future. The weekend includes a pair of Puritan- and shamrock-themed events, pre-game gatherings, pre-game tailgating, Brown vs. Harvard football game, post-game fireworks, a Sweeney Todd: The Demon Barber performance, Sunday on the Green, or the Thayer game, post-game fireworks, a Sweeney Todd: The Demon Barber performance, Sunday on the Green, or the Thayer game, post-game fireworks, a

As we continue the celebration on campus and beyond, please share your stories, memories, and experiences with us throughout the 250th. Let’s reflect on our connection with the University and imagine Brown in the future.

Enjoy your weekend!
