

Fellowships for Research in Japan

Information Session on JSPS Fellowships

The Japan Society for the Promotion of Science (JSPS) is a Japanese research funding agency akin to NSF and NIH. JSPS fellowships invite overseas researchers to advance the international scientific collaborations in Japan.

DATE: December 4, 2014

TIME: 11:00am – Noon

PLACE: Digital Scholarship Lab, Main Floor, Rockefeller Library, Brown University

TOPICS:

- Introduction of JSPS & Outline of JSPS Fellowships
- Presentation from Former JSPS Fellow in Brown: Eli Fox-Epstein, Department of Computer Science
- Japanese University Introduction
- Q & A

Register Here

Or please visit <http://goo.gl/bzjaSq>

Fellowship Programs:

Summer Program: for Pre/Postdoctoral Researchers

- 2 Months During Summer

Postdoctoral Fellowship: for Young Researchers

- Short-term: 1-12 Months
- Long-term: 12-24 Months

Invitation Fellowship: for Mid-Career, Senior Researchers

- Long-term: 2-10 Months
- Short-term: 14-60 Days
- Short-term S: 7-14 Days

Collaboration Program:

JSPS Supports JAPANA-US Research Collaboration in Cooperation with US Counterparts (NIH, NSF, NAS)

Japan Society for the Promotion of Science
Washington Office

<http://jspsusa.org/>