
Intended for courses in the geophysical sciences, but provides ideas and examples that may be useful in other disciplines.

Short article providing general tips and suggestions for creating online assignments.

Provides suggestions on using real data in online activities; especially useful in planning assignments for science and social science courses.

Provides some thoughts on incorporating social media and related online tools into course work.

General tips and advice for designing online assignments.

A brief article on the subject of virtual/remote lab activities. Presents some examples of how to incorporate these into online courses.

Not written specifically for online courses, but the list of resources for specific types of assignments is helpful in suggesting activities that promote different types of learning (i.e., case studies, fieldwork, writing assignments, critical thinking, etc.).

A list of examples, drawn from science courses.