Essay Writing Workshops are for students intending to submit an application for the Marshall and/or Fulbright this fall. Registration and instructions for participation in the in-person or online workshops will be shared approximately two weeks prior to the workshop itself. In person workshops are for students in Providence this summer while online workshops are for those who are away from campus and thus unable to attend in person workshops. Dean Linda Dunleavy and/or the graduate student Fellowship Advisors will be facilitating the workshops and leading discussions about the drafts.

Students are also invited to submit drafts of their essays for review and feedback during the summer. You can send drafts of your essays to Linda Sutherland (linda_sutherland@brown.edu) and she will share them with one of our graduate student fellowship advisors.

To learn more about these opportunities, please consult the fellowships@brown website. You can also access important materials — including print materials and videos of information sessions — related to the Fulbright and many of the Fellowships to the United Kingdom HERE. If after reviewing these materials, you have specific questions or want to schedule an advising meeting with Dean Dunleavy, who is available by appointment over the summer, please contact Linda Sutherland (linda_sutherland@brown.edu).
