As women’s wages rise, domestic violence declines. Are the two related?

Is it better to prohibit addictive substances, or just tax and regulate them?

Why do people pay double for name-brand aspirin?

Why do suburbs make people gain weight? Do food stamps?

Is globalization good or bad? For whom?

Does immigration help or hurt the job opportunities of American workers?

What role does racial prejudice play in our society?

Is political discourse more polarized along party lines than it was in the past?

Why has the gap between rich and poor been growing in America?

Why don’t more Americans believe in climate change?

Can microloans really lift people out of poverty?

Are people selfish or altruistic? Are they rational?

Why are there “missing women” in countries like India and China?

Are people more polarized along party lines than they were in the past?

What role does racial prejudice play in our society?

Why do more Americans believe in climate change?

Can microloans really lift people out of poverty?

Are people more selfish or altruistic? Are they rational?

Why are there “missing women” in countries like India and China?
Explore

ECONOMICS

At Brown!

Courses offered include:

- Environmental Economics and Policy [ECON1350]
- Health, Hunger and the Household [ECON1530]
- Race and Inequality in the U.S. [ECON1370]
- Economics of Mass Media [ECON1400]
- Inequality of Opportunity [ECON1375]
- Behavioral Economics [ECON1820]
- International Trade [ECON1540]
- Game Theory [ECON1870]

AND MORE!

Come see an Economics Concentration Advisor

or shop Principles of Economics [ECON0110]

Email us at economics@brown.edu

Or visit the department website at http://www.brown.edu/academics/economics/

We look forward to seeing you soon!