Alumnae Writers’ Forum

Four recent Brown alums with national publications will offer insights on writing and editing short and long form nonfiction. Sandra Allen ’09, Andrew Marantz ’06.5, Nathan Schneider ’06, and Erica Schwiegershhausen ’13 will read from their work and talk about their paths to careers in nonfiction writing.

Monday, November 11, 2013  •  3:00 pm
Brown/RISD Hillel, 80 Brown Street, 2nd floor

Sandra Allen ’09
Sandra Allen (English, ’09) is a co-founder and managing editor of Wag’s Revue and an associate long form editor for BuzzFeed. Her essays have appeared in the Paris Review Daily, the Magazine, and Hayden’s Ferry Review. While at Brown, Sandra received the 2009 Casey Shearer Memorial Award for Excellence in Creative Nonfiction and the 2008 Barbara Banks Brodsky Prize for Excellence in Real World Writing.

Andrew Marantz ’06.5
Andrew Marantz (Religious Studies and Literary Arts, ’06.5) works as an editor and writer at The New Yorker, where his most recent pieces were about hip-hop street signs, Eugene O’Neill’s stage directions, and the Truman Show delusion. He has also written for New York, Harper’s, Mother Jones, The New York Times, and many other publications.

Nathan Schneider ’06

Erica Schwiegershhausen ’13
Erica Schwiegershhausen (English, ’13) is a writer living in Brooklyn. Her work has appeared on NYMag.com, and in The New York Observer and Wag’s Revue. While at Brown, Erica received the 2013 second place Casey Shearer Memorial Award for Excellence in Creative Nonfiction.

This event is funded by a Salomon Grant (Dean of the College), Brown Degree Days, and the Nonfiction Writing Program, Department of English.
