Frédéric Neyrat is Mellon-Morgridge Professor of Planetary Humanities and Associate Professor of English at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. His publications include Homo Labyrinthus. Humanisme, antihumanisme, posthumanisme (Editions Dehors, 2015), Atopias: Manifesto for a Radical Existentialism (Fordham, 2017), Échapper à l’horreur. Court traité des interruptions merveilleuses (Nouvelles Editions Lignes, with a preface by Jean-Luc Nancy, 2017), The Unconstructable Earth: An Ecology of Separation (Fordham, 2018) and Literature and Materialisms (Routledge, 2020). His work in political philosophy and the Environmental Humanities has positioned him on the forefront of a number of critical conversations, in the United States and in Europe, on the Anthropocene, the human/inhuman, the planetary/extraterrestrial, extinction, ecological crisis, petrocapitalism and geological time. He is the editor of the electronic platform Alienocene. This talk will be in French.
