François Proulx, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign

François Proulx is Assistant Professor of French at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign. He is co-editor, with Christie McDonald, of Proust and the Arts (Cambridge University Press, 2015). His book project on Reading and French Masculinity at the Fin de Siècle, from which this talk is derived, was awarded an NEH Fellowship for 2015-2016. Professor Proulx is a member of Proust21, a research partnership between the University of Illinois, the Université Grenoble Alpes, and the Institut des textes et manuscrits modernes in Paris, working toward a new, fully digital edition of Proust’s correspondence.

Wednesday, April 13 at 5:30PM
The Brian Room at Maddock Alumni Center, 38 Brown Street