Throughout the medieval Mediterranean—from Syria to Egypt, Byzantium, and Spain—Jews had many occasions to offer praise to Muslim and Christian rulers. This lecture will address texts by Jewish authors in honor of Muslim and Christian rulers composed in Hebrew, Arabic, and Castilian in order to examine how Jews represented non-Jewish leaders and negotiated their own position within political structures.