These talks are a part of the Career Information Series featuring Biostatistics alumni. Current students will have the opportunity to learn more about health-related and other job opportunities for people with a solid background in Biostatistics, data analysis and quantitative methods, as well as tips for an effective job search, and advice on pursuing a successful career after graduation.

As part of the Department's newly-designed Biostatistics Master's Journal Club/Career Development module, we are excited about this series and strongly encourage the participation of all Master's students at these events.
