

BROWN

Pembroke Center
for Teaching and Research on Women

The Enid Wilson Undergraduate Travel Fellowship

The Enid Wilson Undergraduate Travel Fellowship supports travel expenses for innovative research by undergraduate honors students from any department pursuing work related to women and gender.

2016/17

Camille Garnsey '17, Latin American Studies and Public Health
The history of reproductive rights in Cuba

Katherine Grusky '17, History, Latin American Studies
Digging Below the Surface: Gender and Family Relations in Chilean Copper Mine, El Teniente, 1904-1930

Andrea Zhu '17, Development Studies
Specter of the Past, Intrusion of the Future: Gender and (Im)mobility at the China-Myanmar Border

2017/18

Margot Cohen, '18, International Relations
Women's Rights as Human Rights: The Case of Femicide in Chile

Emily Sun, '18, Ethnic Studies
"The Rock Cried Out No Hiding Place": Subterranean Bodies and Disoriented Space in Women of Color Performance Art

Natalie Zeif, '18, Education
Negotiating Sexuality and School Work in South Florida: Anita Bryant's Anti-Queer Teacher Movement

2018/19

Makedah Hughes, '19, Comparative Literature
"Mauve (2010) by Fatou Diome: A Translation Exploration of the Linguistic Constructions of Blackness"

Caroline Mulligan, '19, English and History
Landyke Lagacies

Andy M.T. Pham, '19, Ethnic Studies and Gender and Sexuality Studies
Pushing for Purity: Conceptions and Consequences of Cleanliness during the US AIDS Epidemic of the 80s and 90s