An efficient deep learning technique for the Navier-Stokes equations: Application to unsteady wake flow dynamics
Dongkun Zhang

In this paper, the authors address the problem of predicting the unsteady fluid forces for different bluff body shapes at low Reynolds number, and trained a Convolutional Neural Network to approximate the mapping between the bluff body shape and the fluid force.