

BROWN
Sheridan Center for Teaching and Learning

2018-19 Writing Across the Curriculum Faculty Seminar Call for Applications

Harriet W. Sheridan Center for Teaching and Learning

The Writing Across the Curriculum Faculty Seminar provides support for faculty to (re)design, develop, and teach a course that supports writing in their discipline. The program combines a Sheridan seminar on writing pedagogy and course design with a supportive peer community, individual consultation and feedback, and an opportunity to share course and student successes. Seminar size is limited to allow for hands-on opportunities, individual support, and the development of a teaching and learning community. Participants may choose to co-design a course with a graduate or undergraduate student.

Dates:

- April 2018: One-hour individual consultation
- April 26, 2018; 12-1:30 pm: Luncheon and workshop
- June 5-6, 2018: Intensive two-day Sheridan course design seminar
- October 2018: 90-minute cohort syllabus workshop (optional)
- Spring 2019: Participant course offered; Formative feedback collected
- March 2019: Cohort luncheon
- May 2019: Reception and presentations

Requirements:

- Attendance at 2018 seminar meetings and consultations, and Spring 2019 presentations
- Development or redesign of a course that supports student writing and submission for CCC approval
- Instruction of the course in Spring 2019
- Collection of formative feedback from students in Spring 2019 and engagement with assessment of the program

"Fantastic seminar! Thank you for the opportunity to participate."

--2017-18 faculty participant

Funding:

- $2,000 grant for graduate or undergraduate student co-designer support, or other course development costs
- Priority Writing Fellow assignment, if desired

Application Deadline: Please apply by March 2, 2018.

Application form is available at: www.brown.edu/sheridan. Space is limited. Participants will be selected from a range of disciplines.

Questions? Contact:

Jessica Metzler, Ph.D.

Associate Director, Sheridan Center for Teaching and Learning

401-863-9192; Jessica_Metzler@brown.edu